

Team Antistat win 2012 British GTs

Antistat's winning formula is as evident on the track as it is out in the field as the Motorbase Porsche driver they've sponsored for 15 years, Michael Caine with his team mate Daniele Perfetti, scooped this year's British GTs title.

Their continued support for Michael throughout his motor racing career has given everyone at the Antistat office a real passion for something alongside their everyday focus of static shielding bags and ESD consumables.

Having had a sensational season, team Antistat triumphed against circa 30 performance cars including Ferrari, Lamborghini, Aston Martin, McLaren, BMW, Porsche and Audi to bring home the 2012 Driver's title.

John Hensley, CEO at Antistat is delighted with the result, "It's great to be involved with such a committed, motivated team both on and off the track. Everyone has worked so hard this year – the win is certainly well deserved. We're proud to be in our 15th year as Michael's sponsor and will be continuing our support with our co-sponsor Element14 into 2013".
